Band Councils

Each First Nations community has its own Band Council as its main administrative structure. The Band Council is usually made up of a Chief and several advisors. The Chief and the advisors are elected members of the community or are occasionally chosen according to the Band customs. Members of a community normally share values, traditions and practices coming down from a common ancestral heritage. The Band Council of each community is in charge of municipal questions and issues pertaining to health, education, employment and culture.

Assembly of First Nations of Quebec and Labrador and its Commissions

Assembly of First Nations of Quebec and Labrador

AFNQL

The Assembly of First Nations of Quebec and Labrador (AFNQL) is a regional organization gathering together the Chiefs of the First Nations of Quebec and Labrador. The AFNQL holds Assemblies for the Chiefs around four times a year in order to obtain various political mandates. The Chiefs in Assembly elect an AFNQL Chief for a three-year mandate.

The AFNQL supports the communities and represents ten Nations:

Abenaki, Algonquin, Atikamekw, Cree, Huron-Wendat, Malecite, Mi'gmaq, Mohawk, Innu (Montagnais) and Naskapi.

Five regional commissions exist under the authority of the AFNQL and operate in key domains for community development.

Furthermore, the AFNQL is affiliated to the Assembly of First Nations (AFN) with its head office in Ottawa:

- ◆ The AFNQL Chief is an executive member of the AFN which meets around ten times per year.
- ◆ The AFNQL Chief can be nominated as Chief portfolio holder for national issues (e.g.: education, health, finances, international, etc.).

First Nations of Quebec and Labrador Economic Development CommissionFNQLEDC

The FNQLEDC is known to be a service-oriented organization, controlled at the local level and based on concerted efforts and decision-making by consensus. The FNQLEDC works with all its members which are the Community Economic Development Officers (CEDOs) and their economic development organizations and is respectful of the local autonomy and political allegiance and has the support of different partners of the First Nations.

The FNQLEDC is an organization which shares knowledge and recognizes the access to “quality information” as an essential condition to make a decision in the best interest of the community. The Commission devotes its efforts to the support, training and promotion of its members, and to the socio-economic development of the First Nations of Quebec and Labrador insofar as the actions meet the needs of the members.

Société de crédit commercial autochtone / Native Commercial Credit Corporation
SOCCA

SOCCA is a non-profit corporation firmly established within the First Nations of Quebec since 1992. We are positioning ourselves as a partner of choice for the First Nations of Quebec's economic development and expending all our energy in projects likely to contribute to the Aboriginal people's social and economic development. To do so, we are providing daily support to our clients in terms of entrepreneurship funding and development.

Our mission is to offer advice and financial services adapted to the needs and expectations of first nations of Quebec in partnership with other aboriginal and non-aboriginal financial institutions.

Native Para-Judicial Services of Quebec
NPSQ

Native Para-Judicial Services of Quebec is a non-political, not-for profit organization. It was created following negotiations between Quebec First Nations and the Quebec Department of Justice in 1981. Ten nations and provincial associations make up our organizations and sit on its Boards of Directors. Native Para-Judicial Services of Quebec assists native people in matters relating to the criminal justice system. It is wholly committed to developing alternatives to the euro-canadian justice system in order to better meet the needs of native communities in the province of Quebec
